4. Policy Statement

This Privacy Policy has adopted principles and approaches from:

- The Commonwealth Privacy Act 1988;
- Previous Ombudsman's finding in relation to Freedom of Information Request reviews; and
- The Department of the Premier and Cabinet's Information Privacy Principles Cabinet Administrative Instruction.

Although this legislation and administrative instruction do not directly apply to councils within South Australia, principles from within each have been adopted to ensure a suitable standard is applied within the Council.

Members of the public should be aware that the following principles apply when personal information is being considered and handled within the Berri Barmera Council.

- a. Only information reasonably required for the operation and effective delivery of Council programs and services is collected and maintained.
- b. Where possible the full purpose for information collection is disclosed at the time of collection. Noting that at times that purpose may be broad, for example to enable the effective communication with residents and stakeholders regarding projects and programs occurring within the Council area.
- c. Information is stored within Council's systems considering its need for security and confidentiality.
- d. Council is a file number recipient for the purposes of the Commonwealth Privacy Act 1988. A file number recipient is any person who is in possession or control of a record that contains Tax File Number (TFN) information. Council, as an employer, is in receipt of TFN information and has a notification obligation when a data breach, involving TFN information, is likely to result in serious harm to any individual whose TFN information was involved in the breach.
- e. Council is subject to the Freedom of Information Act 1991. The objects of the Freedom of Information Act 1991 are:

- To promote openness in government and accountability of Ministers and the Crown and other government agencies and thereby to enhance respect for the law and further the good government of the State; and
- To facilitate more effective participation by members of the public in the processes involved in making and administration of laws and policies.

These objects are to be achieved as follows:

- Ensuring that information concerning the operations of government (including information concerning the rules and practices followed by government in its dealings with members of the public) is readily available to members of the public and to Members of Parliament; and
- Conferring on each member of the public and on Members of Parliament a legally enforceable right to be given access to document held by government, subject only to such restrictions as are consistent with the public interest (including maintenance of the effective conduct of public affairs through the free and frank expression of opinions) and the preservation of personal privacy; and
- Enabling each member of the public to apply for the amendment of such government records concerning his or her personal affairs as are incomplete, incorrect, out-of-date, or misleading.

In addition, the Freedom of Information Act 1991 provides that Parliament's intention is that the provisions of the Act be interpreted so as to further the objects of the Act. As such, discretions conferred by the Freedom of Information Act will be exercised as far as possible so as to favour the disclosure of information without infringing the right to privacy.
